Babies - And Electronics!

The science of electronics was vastly accelerated by the pressures of World War II. One of the most dramatic developments was radar, which enabled ships and planes to pinpoint targets and objects many miles away through the blackest night or the worst of weather.

To many of us who have difficulty in balancing a monthly bank statement, one of the most mysterious creatures spawned since the war by this new science is the electronic computer. Electrical impulses representing complex mathematical equations and relationships can be fed into one of them at fantastic rates of speed—up to several hundred thousand characters per second. These remarkable machines have been applied to everything from figuring the best combination of ingredients for sausage to analyzing and mapping the movements of every aircraft over the United States as part of our air defense system. They guide missiles in space, and, worse luck, scan our income tax returns.

One of the most interesting recent developments is a new adaptation of the computer in the field of medicine. Nearly 150,000 babies die annually in the last four months of pregnancy, or the first year of life. A group of doctors have organized a study program which utilizes electronic data processing equipment to evaluate pregnancy and birth information from 91 hospitals. Last year the initial program studied 150,000 births. And in 1962, it is hoped that half a million may be handled. The eventual goal will be to analyze all of the nation's baby deliveries, and reduce the infant mortality rate by 15 to 25 per cent in the next five to ten years by making information on previous handling of particular birth and infant conditions immediately available to attending physicians.

Electronics is becoming one of the nation's major industries, and it is certainly one of the most imaginative and rapidly growing ones. Many of its miracle machines have become commonplace necessities in business, industry, and the home. And to an ever-increasing degree, its products will contribute to the country's technical and productive capacity, and to individual enjoyment, comfort and length of life.

"THE WAY TO THE LANTERN"
By Audrey Erskine Lindop

A little slip of a girl who wore green shoes... a charming lady with lily-scented soap... a plain-faced lady who held his signed confession... and Manager Smith who hid his treasures, bought or stolen—in his box. All four paved the way to the Lantern for Roberts. During the French Revolution some of the guilty and not-guilty never made it to the merciful guillotine, but were hung by the mobs from street lanterns. Roberts was a charming actor-confidence man of French and English parentage, whose interests in France were romantic and financial rather than political. As he tried to extricate himself from his romantic entanglements, he became even more violently involved in the Revolution.

The problems (explaining his true identity) which confronted Roberts personally seemed to pale before the mounting violence of Paris. Women marched on Versailles, the Swiss Guards were hacked to pieces, there were macabre killings, desecrations, and drunkenness, and the continual sound of musketry fire, houses were searched, friends betrayed friends as traitors.

Here are Danton, Prudhomme, the Comte de Provence, as well as log merchants, a cocoa vendor, and shopkeepers. Roberts visited Marat, who was sitting in his bath tub with the word DEATH painted on the wall beside him in giant letters.

Robespierre's sister told him of her brother, "if he's left to himself, he's so gentle and kind." With researched facts and a vivid imagination Miss Lindop has made the French Revolution come to life in all its confusion, fear, intrigue, and violence. This book is available at the Crawford County Library.

party was held to celebrate St. Patrick's Day and the birthdays of Mrs. Longdyke, daughters Mary Robinson, Doreen, Joanne, son Harold, Jr., Phil Drouin, Mrs. Eileen Watts and Mrs. Ruth Robinson. The ladies got their roaring 20 dresses out of their closets where they had been carefully stashed away since early February when they had donned them to celebrate the Longdykes 25th wedding anniversary. Everyone did the twist and it didn't matter a snap whether the name was Smith or O'Riley just as long as everyone was keyed to the traditional festivity. And they were. After a hilarious evening of dancing and home movie viewing the guests feasted on everything from green soup to nuts — a birthday sheet cake was embellished in green with the names of the birthday guests inscribed thereon. Twas in the wee-hours the fun seekers bid their host and hostess adieu.

Child Safety

Is your child safe? Really safe from the threat of the home? Maybe, says the Michigan Society for Crippled Children and Adults in a checklist prepared to help parents keep their children safe from accidents.

But, probably not. Accidents are a real threat to children, and their greatest killer and crippler, according to the society. The organization, while conducting its annual Easter Seal fund appeal to help crippled children, is also pointing its guns toward prevention of physical handicaps.

Accidents, it says, will seriously and permanently cripple between 40,000 and 50,000 children and kill more boys and girls this year than the top seven childhood diseases combined.

The checklist advocates the following three measures for parents to use in preventing accident: protection, discipline and education. Among the 10 "yes or no" questions it contains is a series slanted to help parents determine whether they are applying properly the discipline of obedience. Other questions take a sweeping look around the home, providing reminders for safety in the kitchen, bathroom, bedroom, playroom, laundryroom, basement, yard and car.

Copies of the check list, "Is Your Child Safe?", are available free as an Easter Seal service from Lora Gould, local chairman of Michigan Society for Crippled Children and Adults, 407 Cedar, Grayling.

Scouts First-Aid Meet A Success

The first annual Northland District First-Aid Meet was conducted Friday, March 30, at the Houghton Lake High School gym by Scout Troops of the District. Two Patrols scored 90% or better, which gave them an "A" rating and a blue ribbon. They were the Hawk Patrol of Troop No. 53 of Houghton Lake under the leadership of Patrol Leader Duane Gerber and the Ranger Patrol of Troop No. 71 of West Branch with John Gaulan as the Patrol Leader.

"B" ratings with red ribbons went to five Patrols from three different Troops. Both Patrols from Prudenville Troop No. 95 were awarded the red ribbon. They were the Buffalo Patrol with Jim Wootton Patrol Leader and the Eagle Patrol with Michael Detmer, it's leader. Troop No. 44 of Roscommon also had two Patrols getting red ribbons. They were the Eagle Patrol with Harry Ingleson, Patrol Leader and the Elk Patrol with Michael Curtis it's leader. Troop No. 40 of Roscommon with the Buck Patrol with Tom Matheson at Patrol Leader, missed the blue ribbon by 9%. They received the "B" rating with the red ribbon. "C" ratings with the yellow ribbon went to Fred Hinkle Patrol Leader of the Whippoorwill Patrol of Troop No. 78 of Frederic.

Boy Scout Troop No. 93 of Grayling which recently organized attended the First-Aid Meet with their Scoutmaster Howard Brown, but did not participate in the events.

There were eight patrols from six Troops participating in the Meet with 60 Scouts and 12 Leaders with 19 officials running the competition. There were around 125 persons all together at the First-Aid Meet.

Each Patrol was assigned a section of the gym floor where the five team members and two "patients" were ready with their equipment and awaited a problem in First-Aid. The problems were read by William Gerber of Houghton Lake. After the reading of the problem an American Red Cross trained judge, who had been assigned to each of the Patrols, handed a copy of the problem to a designated member of each Patrol who directed the members of the Patrol in the treatment of the patients. Each of the four problems given during the evening had a time limit and a separate scoring system.

The evening program was opened by members of Post No. 100 of Houghton Lake. Donald Bobo of Houghton Lake, the Northland District Camping and Activities Chairman was the Coordinator of the evening program. He was assisted by the Northland District Chairman, Ralph Blouch, also of Houghton Lake.

Bobo introduced all of the officials taking part in the competition. The chief judge was Dr. Charles Oppy of Roscommon. The judges for each Patrol were State Trooper R. Classen (judge coordinator), John Stephens, Dick Marx, Keith McDonald, Bob Harrier, Bob Cook, Robert Morton, Arlene Ellsworth, Mary L. Stuck, Betty Fuels, Carol Jo Dunn, Aletha Ellisworth and Agnes Robinson, all from the Houghton Lake area. The Recorder for the evening was William Wood of West Branch. Timer, was Pete Gearhart of Houghton Lake, and "Doctors" were Mercer Patriarche of West Branch and James Case of Frederic. In charge of registration was Herb Johnson and Don Bobo both of Houghton Lake.

The awards were presented by Bobo to each of the Patrol Leaders. Following the closing ceremony, the Den Mothers of the Houghton Lake area under the leadership of Richard Moran, provided refreshments for all present.
